

Systems Aware Investing Launchpad

Systems Aware Investing Launchpad (SAIL) is TIIP's "one-stop shop" for answers to fundamental questions, practical tools, and support for implementing system-level investing

SAIL has two parts: a plug-and-play solution investors can use to chart their course to become a system-level investor and a community of practice aimed at driving broader industry transformation.

System-level investing topics.*

Clearinghouse of system-level investing information, and opportunities for collaboration and group learning.

Information about system-level investing events and more.

A first-of-its-kind guide on how to adopt system-level investing.

Downloadable strategy document showing investors how to put their mission statement into practice.

*Additional topics (e.g., climate change, equity and inclusion, and financial system stability) to be available over time.

Why Launchpad?

Launchpad helps investors to develop institutional policies, investment beliefs and policy statements, programs and products, due diligence criteria, measurement and reporting practices, and other governance and investment documents and approaches.

Why CoPractice?

- Spur collaboration and coordination to amplify influence
- Gather and share data, best practices, and opportunities
- Inform efforts to set standards and structure the markets for system-level investing
